

Lemon Road Park

ACTION

On April 5th, we volunteered at Lemon Road Park! This park needed some cleaning, so Hiking Heroes showed up, ready for the task. We were taking out invasive species from the park in order to allow the natural species to grow, which proved to be tedious but rewarding.

EXPERIENCE

This clean-up was a multi-step process. Firstly, we had to receive instructions on how to safely pull out the unwanted plants and how to differentiate them from the safe and original species. Once we learned more about the organisms in the park, we got to work!

We spent a few hours pulling out the weeds and invasive species and filling up numerous bags. Although our hands got dirty, we found that the reward was a cleaner park for everyone, making this experience very worthwhile. Be sure to reach out to local clean-up organizations and volunteer!

MEMBER'S THOUGHTS

Despite the hard work we put in, it was not enough to clean the entire park. However, it was encouraging to know that our effort made the park cleaner, even if it was just a little. We hope to come to other local parks soon and do the same!
